ALGERIA

Algeria is the largest country in Africa. In spite of the Sahara desert constituting for more than four-fifths of the country's landmass, Algiers, the nation's capital, is an oasis of culture and enterprise in the north.¹ Nicknamed "Algiers the White" for its beautiful whitewashed buildings lining the coast of the Mediterranean, this name has taken on a double meaning as great numbers of Algerians have been washed white as snow by the blood of Jesus over the past twenty years.²⁻³ Even with significant advancement, there is much work to be done with 99.9% of the country still unreached by the Good News.⁴
